March Madness is Back!

Kennebunk Free Library's March Madness auction fundraiser continues this March as we embrace the madness we are all feeling. Bid online from March 1 to March 31 on an array of themed baskets all focused on generous businesses that have supported KFL in so many ways over the years. All of the baskets have been assembled by the KFL Board of Trustees and all of the gift cards have been purchased by the Friends of KFL as a way of showing support to local businesses. All money raised goes directly back to KFL so your bids support the library as well.

Basket themes include spa, wine, coloring, and "green" and each includes a mystery gift card to a local business that ranges in price from $20 to $50. Additionally, everyone that bids will be entered into a drawing for a Read and Recreation basket based on the new collaboration between Kennebunk Free Library and Kennebunk Land Trust.

Winners can pick their baskets up at the library during curbside hours at the conclusion of the auction. Baskets can also be shipped for an additional fee.

Your support helps KFL achieve our mission to inspire and enable our communities to discover, learn, and connect. Each year, we must raise about 25% of our operating budget through fundraisers such as this.

Registration for the 24th Edition Road Race opens on March 1! Be one of the first 200 to register to get a race T-shirt and goodie bag.

This year, we're hoping for the best of both worlds! We will be holding a virtual Road Race from June 21 - July 7. Run your own race course (or follow the traditional route) whenever it's convenient. We are also planning for an in-person race on July 9 in the hopes that in-person events may be possible at that point.

Road Race sponsorship opportunities are still available. Click here to learn about sponsorship

Looking for April - August Issues of Kennebunk Post

KFL began archiving issues of the Kennebunk Post in 2019. Issues from 2020 will be our second year of doing so. However, like many things, the pandemic has thrown a bit of a wrench in our plan. We have a large gap in our 2020 collection and are missing most issues from April through the end of August. Can you help complete our run? If you still have issues of the Kennebunk Post from this time frame in 2020 and would be willing to donate them to the library, we would love to have them. We have a complete run of the York County Coast Star so only need issues from the Post. Issues you would like to donate can be dropped off in our book drop at your convenience. Thanks for helping us preserve 2020 headlines for the future!

Adult Programs

Heart & Home Book Club - March 1

The Heart & Home Book Club is a pick-your-own book discussion group. Participants choose their own fiction or nonfiction book based on a monthly theme. Our virtual discussions take place through an audio-only (video-free) Zoom meeting. If you've been thinking about trying out our book group, we encourage you to do so. It's always fun to hear about what people read and how they link it to the meeting's theme. It's not at all uncommon for one or more of us to read a children's book or young adult novel. Our unofficial motto is "there is no wrong way to do book club", and everyone is welcome!

Upcoming Meetings:

On Monday, March 1, at 2:00 p.m., our theme will be Resilience.

On Monday, April 5, at 2:00 p.m., our theme will be Flight.

For the link to join the Zoom meeting, please check the rotating display on our website's homepage or the calendar listing for this program. Please call or email the library if you have any questions.

Nonfiction Book Group - March 8

Join us on Monday, March 8 at 6:30 p.m. to discuss The Splendid and the Vile by Erik Larson. Check our website calendar or rotating display for the Zoom link.

"The bestselling author deals with one of the most satisfying good-vs.-evil battles in history, the year (May 1940 to May 1941) during which Churchill and Britain held off Hitler. Bookshelves groan with histories of Britain's finest hour, but Larson (Dead Wake: The Last Crossing of the Lusitania, 2015, etc.) employs a mildly unique strategy, combining an intense, almost day-to-day account of Churchill's actions with those of his family, two of his officials (Frederick Lindemann, who was Churchill's prime science adviser, and Lord Beaverbrook, minister of air production), and staff, including private secretary Jock Colville and bodyguard Walter Thompson. Since no one doubted they lived in extraordinary times and almost everyone kept journals and wrote letters, the author takes full advantage of an avalanche of material, much of which will be unfamiliar to readers." (Kirkus Reviews, February 1, 2020)

Meet Samuel Hawley, a man in a constant struggle with his violent past, doing the best he can to raise his daughter. Meet Loo, his daughter, a girl with an obscure past and an uncertain future, on the cusp of adulthood. And meet Lily, the dead woman who connects them both. In this finely woven novel, the past and the present gradually illuminate the story of a man's life through the bullet wounds he carries with him and makes readers consider what it is to be both good and evil. (Dawn Terrizzi, Denton Public Library, Denton, TX: LibraryReads, March 2017)

A Message from the Library Director

With our March Madness fundraiser starting and Road Race registration opening, there is some inkling of normalcy returning. We are also itching to get outside as it warms up and a great way to start is with our new partnership with the Kennebunk Land Trust, Reading and Recreation. We will also have activities (likely take-home) lined up for Faerie Festival in early May and believe it or not, we are already getting our Summer Reading plans together. Thank you so much for all of your continued support and understanding. The community has been relaying frequent comments to staff about their hard work and I couldn't agree more.

Staff Picks & Messages

This month, in addition to newer reviews, we're going to tell you about some of our favorite books that have been buried in the stacks and not checked out for a few years. We hope you enjoy them as much as we did!

Kat, Library Assistant

Let Us Dream – The Path To A Better Future by Pope Francis

This book asks the reader to take a look at what Covid 19 has revealed about our global situation. Pope Francis is troubled by an attitude that the most important thing is “to get back to normal” rather than use this pandemic to reevaluate our economic inequalities, use of our environment and our priorities. The proposed plan uses current findings of scientists, economists, activists, as well as spiritual traditions, to encourage each of us to explore new possibilities. The uplifting ideas presented are practical and point to a great future for humanity.

My Dark Vanessa by Kate Elizabeth Russell

Psychological fiction that brings you into the mind of a teacher that grooms and preys upon his young female students. His brilliant portrayal of the relationship as true love and as himself as the victim to Vanessa is fascinating. Of course, what we know as a predatory relationship, deeply contorts Vanessa as she grows to adulthood. The author does a great job of helping the reader see how our cultural norms allow such atrocities to take place and the various ways bystanders and family react.

We were invited to show some love to a great book that got buried in the stacks section and my two picks are both old historical novels with strong, female protagonists:

Kristin Lavransdatter by Sigrid Undset

I love the view into 14th century Norway and strong-willed Kristen that this story offers. After I watched the DVD (available from KFL-English subtitles) I had to read the book.

Katherine by Anya Seton

Same century but in England, this is the love story of Katherine Swynford and John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster and the third surviving son of King Edward III.

Forest Trees of Maine is a publication of the Maine Forest Service. Our library has a copy of the 1908 – 2008 centennial edition, and a free e-book version is available for download in part and in full on the Maine Forest Service's website. This spiral bound book is a guide for identifying and learning more about the tree species that grow in Maine. In addition to historical and other introductory materials, the book begins with a winter identification key as well as a summer identification key, a comprehensive glossary, and several labeled botanical drawings. Each tree species has a one or two page profile with multiple photos and a written description of identifying features, such as bark, buds and flowers. I really enjoyed reading and later using this book to learn more about the trees with whom I share a home. For example, I successfully walked myself through identifying a tree in my yard with the use of the winter key to confirm that the little evergreen residing just feet from my home is a Balsam Fir, which the guide tells me is the most abundant tree in the state!

Chocolate Wars: the 150-Year Rivalry Between the World's Greatest Chocolate Makers
by Deborah Cadbury

I wince when I notice this book still sitting on the shelf rather than checked out and being devoured by some food history fan or reader with a sweet tooth. It is such a fascinating read! Written by a member of the Cadbury (yes, that Cadbury) family, Chocolate Wars gives an in-depth look at the development of the Cadbury company and other early chocolate manufacturers, walking through the innovative technologies created, borrowed, stolen, and adapted to transform chocolate from a gritty and bitter Victorian health food drink to the confection we know and love today. Alongside the progress of the food itself, we get a compelling look into the rise of the Cadbury brothers' business in which they applied their deep Quaker values and endeavoured to provide the best for their workers including building homes, schools, recreation areas, indeed an entire village for them- notably catching the eye of one Milton Hershey. One word of warning- this book will absolutely have you craving chocolate, so it may be best to have a bar on hand while reading.
