Gravestone Art of Bartlett Adams

The Kennebunk Free Library Genealogy Group will host Ron Romano on Saturday, October 7 at 10 a.m. Romano will discuss the rich, personal story of Bartlett Adams, a stone-cutter who moved to Portland in 1800 and established the area's first stone-cutting shop and share examples of his Adams' artwork.

Adams supplied hearthstones and mantelpieces to the Portland area's homes, but his more lasting - and visible - impact can be found in the early cemeteries in southern Maine. His busy shop produced hundreds of slate and marble gravestones, a nice variety of which survive today in the historic burial grounds of Portland and surrounding towns.

Ron Romano leads cemetery tours and serves on the Board for Spirits Alive, the "Friends of Eastern Cemetery" in Portland. He is a frequent lecturer, locally and nationally, on early gravestones and cemeteries. His first book, Early Gravestones in Southern Maine: The Genius of Bartlett Adams, was published by The History Press in 2016. His new book, Portland's Historic Eastern Cemetery: A Field of Ancient Graves, will be released in October.

The Genealogy Group is open to the public and meets nine times a year.

Local History Documents Preserved by Digitization Project

One of the many treasures at the Kennebunk Free Library is an eleven volume set of diaries written by Andrew Walker, a prominent 19th century figure in Kennebunk. Walker's daily entries record a wide range of events and interests including weather, politics, religion, poetry, social events and customs, local history, trade, and various other topics. His entries cover town events from Kennebunk and surrounding areas, as well as state and nationwide events and issues. Spanning over 46 years, from 1851-1897, the diaries offer a fascinating account of 19 century life in the Kennebunks area. Previously only available for viewing in person at the library, access to these treasures has now been made available to all via a digitization project undertaken by Kennebunk Free Library staff in partnership with the Maine State Library.

Using a high-resolution document scanner at the Maine State Library, each volume of the diary was scanned into a digital document and uploaded to the state's digital repository, Digital Maine. Digitization of the Walker Diaries allows researchers and interested parties to download and view the documents from anywhere with an internet connection. In addition to expanded access, digitization allows the original volumes to be handled less frequently, helping to preserve them for future generations.

Over the years, the Kennebunk Free Library has attempted to index the content of the diaries. A handwritten topical index was originally made using a box of index cards. In 1994, the library had a computerized index created which, including cross-referenced terms, contains approximately 5,900 subject and name entries. During the digitization project, optical character recognition (OCR) scanning was applied to this index, which allows the digitized document to be searched by keyword. The searchable index serves as a time-saver for researchers who can now find specific topical entries throughout the eleven diary volumes, rather than needing to page through each in hopes of coming across a specific subject. The digitized index is included in the DigitalMaine repository along with the diaries.

The Kennebunk Free Library and the Maine State Library are pleased to make these resources available to not only Kennebunk and Maine residents, but to all around the globe. The digitized documents may be accessed at Digital Maine http://digitalmaine.com/andrew_walker_diaries

Wreath Fundraiser Returns

Kennebunk Free Library is now accepting orders from individuals and businesses for wreaths which will be delivered to the library for pick up on Sat., Nov. 18th. Made at Wreaths of Maine in Waldoboro these beautifully handmade, double-sided 23" Balsam wreaths, centerpieces and sprays will adorn your front door and make excellent gifts.

There are nine options to choose from ranging from $30-$38 as well as a 33" wreath suitable for larger windows and doors. The cost for the 33" wreath is only $53. Every wreath is hand made by a skilled wreath-maker and decorated.

Those who purchased wreaths, sprays and centerpieces last year reported great satisfaction in the quality, price, and delivery of their items. We are happy to offer these Wreaths of Maine items again. All proceeds benefit the Library.

For an additional fee, wreaths can be shipped to friends and loved ones. The wreaths are delivered in decorative boxes using the fastest delivery possible, so wreaths arrive fresh. The public is invited to view the exhibit during regular Library hours when the gallery is not in use for library programs.

"This exhibit contains paintings with a variety of subjects and places that fascinate me: from my immediate Maine neighborhood, to the beach, to Portland, to across the ocean where I have traveled. Throughout the year, my interests, ideas and focus change from my favorite flowers to landscapes, to buildings, to people as the seasons change from spring to late winter."

Liz is a retired preschool and 2nd grade teacher. Her undergraduate studies at Drew University and West Chester University included courses in art history and studio art. As an adult Liz's studio art education continues with workshops and ongoing study with painter Dennis Rafferty. Fooood! (Bring a Dish, Try a Dish)

Looking for some food ideas to entertain during the holidays? Want to try a new recipe? Have a family classic you want to share with a group? Visit us on Tuesday, November 14 at 6 p.m. with your prepared dish to share with fellow attendees. There will be tastings and lively discussion.

Beginning Wednesday, October 4 patrons can stop by the library to sign up (registration required) and let us know what you'll be bringing. Our format is "bring a dish, try a dish".

Looking for ideas? We'll have plenty of free cooking magazines to give away and over 200 cookbooks in-house available to borrow. An FAQ sheet will be available at sign-up to answer all of your questions about this program.

Kennebunk resident and cooking enthusiast Linda Lyon will facilitate a casual discussion so come ready to talk about your cooking experience. Why did you choose what you did? Would you recommend the recipe? Did you step out of your comfort zone? Let's get together and have fun.

This program is free and wheelchair accessible. Dishes may contain food allergens - please make sure to check and inquire about ingredients.

Did You Know? Your phone can be used as a library card...

Take a picture with your phone of your library card so the next time you forget your library card you'll still have it with you. A photo will usually do the trick (make sure when we go to scan your phone the brightness is turned up all the way) or you can download a "key ring" app which conveniently keeps all of those barcodes in one place.

Well-Attended Programs

We've seen outstanding attendance at many of our recent programs and we thank you very much for your support. KFL is doing our best to accommodate these large turn-outs by maximizing the seating available in our largest area, the Parsons Reading room.

Unfortunately, even with these efforts we have not had enough seating for all. KFL is aware of this and keeping it keenly in mind as we are constantly planning for the future. Your feedback is very important and helpful. Please ask for a feedback form and remember that programs without registration are on a first-come, first served basis and are often open to all ages.
