These are the things I prize
And hold of dearest worth:
Light of the sapphire skies,
Peace of the silent hills,
Shelter of forests, comfort of the grass,
Music of birds, murmur of little rills,
Shadow of clouds that swiftly pass,
And, after showers,
The smell of flowers and of the good brown earth,—
And best of all, along the way, friendship and mirth.

"There may be ways
Tuesday unnumbered but to me there are but two of going on life's journey
Toward that end we have in view!

One way is cold and dreary - the sun sinks out of sight
And more than half the journey is accomplished in the night.
No stars are in the heavens, no blossoms fair are seen.
The way is cold and dreary, and the folks we meet are mean.
And here I give the reason that the joys of life we miss
We keep the corners of our mouth turned Downward - just like this

The other way, - a pleasant view
There's not a bit of gloom,
The stars are shining in the sky
The flowers are in bloom.
The sun looks down in splendor
On all the sparkling dew,
From every hilltop in our path
We get a pleasant view -
The folks we meet are wreathed in smiles
Their journey is but play
They walk along with laugh and song
Throughout the livelong day.
And here I give the reason
That our way is filled with bliss
We keep the corners of our mouth
Turned upward, - just like this -

Thursday Life is a book in which we read a page a day. We can not turn clear over to the last chapter to see how it ends, because we write the story ourselves setting the type or a good compositor can do, from the copy of our own thoughts and actions, till the evening of each day runs off the edition. The best compositor is he who sets each page with fewest errors, and wastes the least time correcting a dirty "proof": even with the best of us, much of each day's page is an "errata" covering the mistakes of yesterday.

Rainbows of promise stretched across

Have asked a greater boon."

"My every breath and every thought

The good that near them lay

The joy-bird sang each day."

Friends are rarest of all gifts
Rich the blessings they bestow
And alike in joy and grief
Never fail their love to show.

Christ's own spirit dwells in thee
Ever thoughtful, ever kind,
Surely those who know thee best
Count the value of thy mind.

Loving, gentle, simple, strong,
Aiding every worthy cause,
Ripened years will give you, friend,
Youth perpetual to life's close.

So I offer in these lines
No great lyric, as you see,
Only just a tribute small,
With my name its mystery.

A blessed thing it is for everyone to have a friend; one human soul whom we can trust utterly: who loves the best and worst of us, and loves us in spite of our faults: who will speak the honest truth to us while the world flatters us to our face and laughs at us behind our backs: who will give us counsel and reproof in the day of prosperity and self-conceit; but who will comfort and encourage us in the day of difficulty and sorrow; when the world leaves us to fight our battles as we can.

'Tis Heaven alone that is given away
'Tis only God may be had for the asking;
No price is set on a loveliest summer;
June may be had by the poorest corner.

And what is so rare as a day in June?
Then, if ever, come perfect days,
Then Heaven tries the earth if it be
And over it softly her warm ear ^{(in time,} lays.

Thus help us in our daily needs,

Raise us from what is low.

There is love that stirs the heart, - and love that gives it rest,
But the love that leads life upward

Wednesday

"What is thy Creed? a hundred lips inquire;
Thou seekest God beneath what Christian spire?
The clear, cold question chills to frozen doubt;
Oh, then, if reason waver at thy side,
Let humbler Memory be thy gentle guide;
Go to thy birth-place, and, if faith was there,
Repeat thy Father's Creed, thy Mother's prayer."

Friday

I wish you all
good fortune,
which twelve long
months may give;
With loyal friends
to cheer you,-
And a long, long life to live!

Monday

My boat sails over a bay of thought
With greetings for Xmas and New Years fraught.

And the Xmas good-will in a perfect gale,
Is coming from aft and filling her sail.

For there's never a calm upon those seas
where the love of your friends is supplying the breeze.

Here's to the year that has gone
With its share of joy & sadness
And here's to the year to come
May it have a full measure of gladness.
