More than just great music

The New Hampshire Philharmonic Orchestra is thrilled to announce the launch of its 2024-2025 season, marking a century since the premiere of George Gershwin’s iconic “Rhapsody in Blue.” This milestone season will feature a special premier performance of “Rhapsody in Red, White, and Blue,” an homage composed by Grammy-nominated composer Peter Boyer, in collaboration with acclaimed Steinway artist Jeffrey Biegel.

As part of the celebrations, the NH Philharmonic Orchestra has the honor of presenting the state’s premiere performance of “Rhapsody in Red, White, and Blue,” a vibrant new work that captures the spirit of Gershwin’s original masterpiece while infusing it with contemporary flair. The concert is set for October 26th and 27th at Seifert Performing Arts Center in Salem and promises to be a highlight of the season, celebrating American music and innovation. The NH Philharmonic Orchestra is proud to be chosen to perform the premiere performance of this amazing piece, showcasing local talent and the enduring legacy of Gershwin’s work.

The 2024-2025 season will also feature a variety of performances, educational outreach programs, and community events designed to engage audiences of all ages. Tickets for the season opener and additional performances will be available starting in August. Visit the NH Philharmonic Orchestra's website at www.nhphil.org for tickets.
