Out of the Archives

In preparation for the new Library, we have embarked on a project to organize our local history archival collection. Some very interesting items are being unearthed and will be featured as part of this monthly newsletter by our Archivist, Arielle Nathanson.

This month's feature is:

Patent Medicines or Snake Oil

Back in the 1700s, 1800s and even early 1900s, it was common to find advertisements for miracle medicines in newspapers, pamphlets and sometimes even books. Accordingly, this month's item of interest is an advertisement for aerated oxygen found in an 1890s Sharon newspaper. But before that, a short introduction to the world of patent medicines.

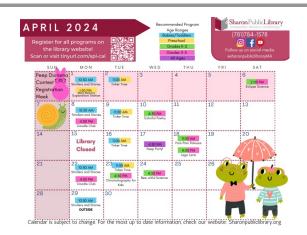

Medicine wasn't regulated like it is today. Anyone could mix mystery ingredients together, call it a miracle cure and sell it to the public. People were all too happy to try these medicines, because contemporary doctors were often feared and largely distrusted. Medical theory dictated the unpleasant use of bloodletting, emetics and purgatives, even if it wasn't helping the patient. Doctors simply didn't have the basic knowledge of germ theory that we do today and it made them wholly unpopular. Who wouldn't choose a cheap wonder drug, when their only other option was bloodletting? Unfortunately, these wonder drugs were often ineffective and dangerous.

Going back to the advertisement in the Sharon newspaper, it makes some unbelievable claims that would have sounded like a godsend back in the 1890s.

"Take 21,000 beautiful young girls and then consider that of this large number 7,000 will, according to medical statistics, die of Consumption. One-third of the human race dies of Consumption. Facts, and figures back of facts show it. Preventative medicine is doing much now. Aerated oxygen stands king of preventive agents. It removes impurities, makes bright, rich, health-giving blood, heals ulcerated lungs..."

Q&A with C.S. Harris Author of the "Sebastian St. Cyr" Historical Mystery Series

April 23rd at 7:00 PM via Zoom

C.S. (aka Candice Proctor) is the prolific writer of the Sebastian St. Cyr series. We're also celebrating the book birthday of the 18th in this series, Who Cries for the Lost?

Regency England. The age of Napoleon and Jane Austen. Fortunes are won and lost at the turn of a card, a decades-old war has turned Europe into a ravaged battlefield, and in London, a child of six can still be hanged for stealing a handkerchief. This is the world of Sebastian St. Cyr, Viscount Devlin. Heir to an earldom, disillusioned Army officer, latter day knight errant. A master of disguises. Sebastian moves easily from the ballrooms of Mayfair to the rookeries of St. Giles, from the exclusive men's clubs of St. James's to the dangerous docks of the Thames.
